JUDGMENT, NOT LUCK, COUNTS

LIEUT. O'BRIEN.

Lieut. "Pat" O'Brien, the American aviator of the Royal Flying Corps, who will tell the story of his escape from the Germans at the Hopkinsville Tabernacle Monday evening, May 13th, at 8 o'clock, says that "luck" is something in which he believes only mildly.

"People have said I was lucky when I escaped uninjured from the 8000 feet fall," said Lieut. O'Brien, "and that I was doubly lucky when the shot that brought me down didn't kill me. Maybe that's true, but it wasn't luck that made me jump through the train window while it was speeding me to a prison camp. I jumped of my own accord and therefore "luck" cannot be credited in any way with my coming through that particular adventure, nor the ones that followed, and the fact that I am here now is not due entirely to that indefinable, courted-yet-fear-ed element termed "luck."

"I took it chance that my judgment was correct just as I've taken hundreds of chances with less important things than life and so far my judgment has been correct, which I believe sums up the situation better than to say I've been lucky.

"I've seen a lot of men killed and as near as I could figure it out, they were simply outgeneraled. The other man's judgment was better than theirs.

"In war the same as in any other undertaking, and especially in aerial fighting, calm, cool judgment is the most important factor and my advice to all our aviators is to keep cool, work without haste, carefully study every conceivable situation so as to meet it with the correct manoeuvre and forget entirely about luck."

The lecture will be given under the auspices of the Christian county Woman's Committee, Council of National Defense.

DEATH OF J. E. FAWCETT.

HUN GUNS SILENCED

FIRST DRAFT COLORED MEN

LIST OF 35 CHOSEN YESTERDAY WHO WILL GO TO DETROIT MONDAY MORNING.

MEETING IN THEIR HONOR

WILL BE HELD AT THE TABERNACLE AT 3:30 O'CLOCK THIS AFTERNOON.

Only three of the colored registrants failed to be present yesterday morning when 35 troops were selected to go to Camp Wayne, near Detroit, early Monday morning.

No difficulty was found in securing the men needed. Those engaged in farming were excused for the present and two who were farm hands, but out of work were excused to make way for two volunteers who were anxious to go. One of these came from Chicago and while his number was not reached he insisted on being taken. After the list was made up brief talks were made by M. L. Elb, Rev. E. Williams, pastor of the Virginia street colored Baptist church; W. O. Soyars, Chas. M. Meacham and C. R. Clark and Ira D. Smith, members of the Board.

Rev. Williams announced that a meeting would be held at the Tabernacle this afternoon at 3:30 at which a number of speeches would be made and special honors would be shown to the soldiers going away. At the train Monday morning each would be presented with a lunch box and with an envelope containing $1.62. The money was raised through the efforts of Hiram Smith and other leading colored men.

The following is a list of those selected, except the last named, who is a volunteer alternate and will not go unless some one selected should fail to be ready:

Gen. Von Arnim Started An Onslaught That He Quickly Abandoned When a Broadside Was Turned Loose On Him Along a Twenty-five Mile Front.

FOUND FRANCO-BRITISH READY

(By International News Service.)

London, May 4.—General von Arnim had an after thought today. It probably saved him from duplicating the disaster which his vain onslaughts of last Monday cost him. It was suggested by a terrific counter bombardment with which the Franco-British batteries greeted a German drum fire on a 25-mile front between Nieppe and the region of Zollebeke. Here the German commander gave up the "new Flanders battle" before it had gotten beyond the artillery stage. Relatively it was one of the most encouraging successes to the Allies' credit since March 21.

Italians Undaunted.

Rome, May 4.—Austrian local attacks against the Italian lines, in the Mountain areas were repulsed, the war office announced tonight. Twelve Austrian machine guns were brought down in aerial engagements and two others put out of commission.

Parliament Adjourned.

Vienna, May 4.—Emperor Charles has powered Von Seydlitz to adjourn the Reichsrath or Austrian Parliament, forthwith.

Sees No Change.

Berlin, May 4.—"The situation is unchanged on the battle fronts in the west," says to-night's war office report. Intense artillery action was recorded southeast of Arras.

Copenhagen, May 4.—A semi-official statement published in an official newspaper says the Greek army has appeared on the Macedonian front, thus bringing about a state war between Greece and Bulgaria.

OFFENSIVE HAS FAILED.

In the opinion of Lord Robert Cecil, British Minister of Blockade, a new peace offensive will follow the failure of the German "knockout offensive" in France and Flanders. New and attractive terms probably will be offered, he thinks, but nothing reasonable enough for the Allies to consider.

WHITE-STIGALL.

Mr. Jas. Thomas White and Miss Sadie Undine Stigall were married yesterday at 2 p. m. at the Baptist parsonage by Dr. C. M. Thompson. Both the parties reside in Hopkinsville and were attended at their marriage by A. B. Bennett and Miss Mary L. Keel.

HAILE-ALEXANDER.

Mr. Ramsey Haile, of Earlington, age 31, and Miss Mabel Alexander, of Crofton, age 18, procured a marriage license yesterday morning at the county clerk's office and were married in the court house by Rev. W. R. Goodman.

FAR BEYOND THE LIMIT

THIRD LIBERTY BOND SUBSCRIPTION $200,000,000 TO THE GOAL BY 5 P. M.

OVER THE TOP AND MORE

LAST DAY'S WHIRLWIND FINISH EARLY REMOVED ALL DOUBTS.

(By International News Service.)

Washington, May 4.—The Treasury Department at 5:50 this afternoon that official reports at that time showed a total of $3,203,655,000 in Liberty Loan subscriptions.

The Third Liberty Loan Campaign closed at midnight with subscriptions of at least $3,203,655,400. The final result will not be known for at least two weeks but officially estimated ultimate figures will be approximately $4,000,000,000, an oversubscription of $1,000,000,000. Between twelve and fifteen million persons entered subscriptions. Treasury officials will not even venture a prediction to-night on the full amount likely to come in.

MUSIC LOVERS TO HAVE FEAST

JOAN OF ARC CANTATA WILL BE SUNG BY LARGE SELECTION OF PICKED VOICES.

There's a real treat coming soon to the people of Hopkinsville and Christian county and any others who appreciate music. This treat will be an opportunity to hear sung at the Tabernacle at an early date the historic cantata "Joan of Arc." A large number of picked voices have been practicing for weeks and the public may well expect a real feast of music when they hear this famous selection. The soloists will be assisted by a full chorus and orchestra. The complete program will be published at an early date. Watch for it, as you will not want to miss it under any circumstances.

DECISION GOES TO NASHVILLE BOY.

Ben King Harned, Hopkinsville High School's representative in the big declamatory contest held at Vanderbilt University in Nashville Friday night, was compelled to return home last night without the honor of having won the decision of the judges as making the best speech. It is stated that Ben King, though he did not win the contest, acquitted himself as a real orator and was a real honor to the Hopkinsville High and the home school has every reason to be proud of the effort made by this young boy.

About 20 schools were represented in the contest and many of the contestants were boys much older than young Mr. Harned. The judges' decision went to Arthur L. Cohn, representing the Hume-Fogg High School, Nashville. Cohn's subject was "Force to the Utmost" and he used President Wilson's recent speech in Baltimore when he used the same subject. Ben King Harned chose for his subject "Emmett's Defiance," which he declaimed in great style.

CHANNEL STILL BLOCKED.

The British Admiralty has found that the channel at Zeebrugge, in which old British cruisers recently were sunk during the naval raid on the German submarine bases on the Belgian coast, is still blocked and will probably remain so for a considerable time in spite of the efforts of the Teutons to dredge a new channel around the obstacles formed by the wrecks of the warships.

ELECTION OF TRUSTEES

DEVELOPED CONTENTS IN BOTH WHITE AND COLORED ELECTIONS.

In the election for white school trustees yesterday a total of 645 votes were cast and in the colored election 948 votes were polled. A large percentage, probably half, of the voters in both elections were women. In the white election the retiring trustees were L. B. Cornette, J. H. Cate and T. W. Morris. All sought re-election and two other candidates were H. W. Linton and W. J. Murphy.

The result was as follows:
L. B. Cornette.....538
H. W. Linton.....500
J. H. Cate.....478
T. W. Morris.....191
W. J. Murphy.....132
The three first named were elected.

In the colored election Wm. Norman and Frank Boyd were the retiring members. Boyd declined to stand for re-election and Sam H. Bronaugh ran on the ticket with Norman.

There were three other candidates The vote stood:

S. H. Bronaugh.....576
Wm. Norman.....550
George Leavell.....430
Dan S. Stewart.....194
Willis Mayes.....41
The first named two were elected.

GRADUATION EXERCISES

HELD FRIDAY NIGHT BY LAFAYETTE HIGH SCHOOL—MUSIC BY H. S. ORCHESTRA.

The 1917-18 term of the LaFayette High School came to a close Friday night with graduations exercises and the awarding of diplomas to five graduates.

The meeting was held in the Methodist church and was presided over by Principal S. E. Hancock. Supt. L. E. Foster, of this city, delivered the principal graduation address and Rev. W. H. Hickerson of LaFayette, presented the diplomas.

The music for the occasion was rendered by the Hopkinsville High School Orchestra which played twelve selections of popular and appropriate music.

The entire party going from Hopkinsville to attend the exercises composed twenty-one persons, which number included the High School Orchestra, led by Prof. E. N. Mallory.

The program which included short speeches by the five graduates was as follows:
Salutatory.....Joseph G. Hester
History.....Lois A. Stona
Class Motto.....William G. Richards
Prophecy.....Lillian E. Smith
Valedictory.....Ethel D. Burks
Class Address.....L. E. Foster
Presentation of Diplomas.....
.....Rev. W. H. Hickerson
Awarding of Medals.
Closing Remarks, Prof. S. E. Hancock
This has been a successful year for the LaFayette High School and the five young people who graduated and were awarded diplomas are such boys and girls as would do credit to any school.

OUR SERVICE FLAG

TALKED TO MUCH.

The Victor Talking Machine Company was held to be an illegal combination in restraint of trade in a final decree in New York by Federal Judge Augustus N. Hand. The court issued the usual dissolution restraining orders in such cases. The government alleged in its petition that the Victor Talking Machine Company had systematically made contracts and engaged in combinations in restraint of trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. In directing a decree against the company, the court found that the concern had eliminated competition between wholesale distributors and retail dealers in the United States in purchasing and selling its products and had otherwise restrained trade and commerce by bringing about an agreement that restrictions promulgated by the company with respect to resales, persons and territory would be observed. Approximately 710 wholesale distributors and 7,000 retail dealers were affected, according to the court's findings.

Articles appearing in German newspapers would indicate efforts to prepare the German people for an announcement that there would be no immediate attempt to take Ypres. Experts, writing what may be considered inspired reviews of the situation, say that nothing would be gained by the capture of the ruined city. This may mean that the Germans will turn their attention to some other part of the front for a new effort and that the bombardment of the lines near Merville and further east may be the first step in an attempt either to bore straight through the allied armies, or cut through towards the south and force a British retirement from the Arras-Lens salient.

In answer to statements made by Senator Sherman in the senate, Maj. E. B. Stahlman, publisher of the Nashville Banner, who was in Washington in connection with the senate postal rate hearings, denied he is an alien enemy, declaring he was naturalized in 1850 and has lived in Nashville for fifty-three years. Major Stahlman said his naturalization had been questioned by political enemies because he had "turned a bunch of rascals out of the city hall and the court house."

AGED DWELLERS IN POOR HOUSE TAKE 3 LIBERTY BONDS

THREE OLD MEN "GIVE TILL IT HURTS," SACRIFICING 94 OF THEIR MONTHLY $5.

WOMEN INMATES BUY, TOO

Mother of 20 Sends Two Sons to Serv. Ice—Paralyzed Knitter Works for "Unfortunates."

By HUGH L. WOOD.

When the grand total of much more than $3,000,000,000 of Liberty Bond sales is cast up sometime after May 4 no one bond among them probably will represent so much sacrifice—so much scrimping—so much real "giving till it hurts" as three $50 bonds sold in the St. Louis Poor House. Those three bonds, to be paid for at $1 a week, will represent many little luxuries given up—a bag of candy here, a pocket knife for whittling there—by three old men alone in the world but still partners in the great American nation and ready and willing to do their humble "bit" to help bring victory home.

These men are John Crane, Joseph Walsh and Charles Heimbolt, all on the shady side of 70 years. They have for years been inmates of the St. Louis City Infirmary, the large institution topping a hill on Arsenal street, in sight of Potters' Field.

A dollar probably looms larger in that structure than anywhere else in the large city. Even nickels and dimes are treasured there.

Crane has for a long time been messenger at the institution and receives $5 every 30 days for his services. When Dr. Charles E. Baur, superintendent, placarded the reception room of the infirmary with Third Liberty Loan posters—more in a spirit of patriotism than in the expectation of making sales—Crane was deeply interested. He inquired if cash was required to buy a bond, and when Dr. Baur informed him he might buy a $50 one for $1 a week he was overjoyed.

"I am an American," he said, "and I would like to help my country. I believe I could finish paying for one."

So Dr. Baur put him down and he is going to give $1 every month out of his salary of $5.

Crane told his crony, Heimbolt, night attendant at the telephone, about it. Heimbolt gets $5 a month for his services and he very shortly convinced himself that he, too, could afford to buy a bond. He signed up for a $50 one on the $1-a-week payment plan.

Walsh outranks his fellows by far in the matter of wages. As the scab of that cheerless place—Potters' Field—he receives $10 a month. He is an inmate of the infirmary and soon figured that he could well afford a $50 bond if his two $5 friends could—and, besides, the government needed the money. So he, too, became a bond owner at $1 a week.

Mrs. Clara Kersting, another inmate of the institution, is keenly patriotic and is doing her share in helping to finance the war for human liberty.

Although paralyzed on one side, she is an expert with the knitting or crocheting needles. She has crocheted yards of fancy lace and knitted numerous garments. The knitted articles go to the soldiers and sailors and war sufferers even more unfortunate than herself. The lace she sells to interested visitors.

She manages to handle her knitting needles by sticking one of them into the sleeve of her paralyzed arm. She makes up for the handicap of the useless member through the dexterity of her useful one. She is saving the money from the sale of her articles to buy Liberty Bonds.

Mrs. Hattie Lackey is another patriotic inmate of the institution. She is now employed in making a patchwork "crazy" quilt which she hopes to sell in order to buy thrift stamps and, perhaps, a Liberty Bond.

Another woman, mother of 20 children, is one of the busiest knitters in the institution. Seventeen of her children are dead. Two of the three living are in the national service—one in the army and one in the navy. She is buying thrift stamps and hopes to buy a bond, too.

Mrs. Harry Lee Wyatt of 4 Parkland place probably has the most novel assignment within the gift of the American Red Cross. She has been detailed to instruct classes in knitting among the inmates of the City Hospital, City Infirmary and Insane Asylum.

She declares that the work is being taken up enthusiastically by these unfortunates. In the Sanitarium the occupation of knitting is said by officers of the institution to have had a marked soothing effect upon the minds of the workers. Their first concern upon awakening in the morning is about their knitting materials.

Mrs. Wyatt has a regular visiting day at each institution. The St. Louis chapter of the Red Cross supplies the materials and the finished garments are sent to men in service or to war sufferers.

WHOLESOME BREAD CONTAINING NO WHEAT.

Rye and Corn Flour Biscuits.
1 cup rye flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup corn flour, 2 tablespoons shortening, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ¾ cup milk (about), mix and sift dry ingredients, chop in shortening, add milk gradually until mixture is soft and spongy, turn on slightly floured board and roll until about ¼ inch in thickness, cut with floured biscuit cutter. Bake 10 to 15 minutes in hot oven.

Boston Brown Bread—1 cup corn meal or corn flour, 1 cup rye meal, 1 cup huckwheat flour, 2 ½ teaspoons soda, 1 teaspoon salt, ¾ cup molasses, 2 cups sour milk, mix and sift dry ingredients and add the molasses and milk. Beat thoroughly and strain 3 ½ hours in well greased covered mold. Remove the covers and bake the bread long enough to dry the top. This may be made with 1 ½ cup corn meal and rye meal. This serves 8 people.

Please publish these in Sunday paper. People are asking for receipts using no wheat.

THE GRIZZLY PASSED ON

VIEWING THE PREPARATIONS OF THE ELK HERD TO PROTECT THEIR CALVES, HE SOUGHT DINNER ELSEWHERE.

"While camped at 8,500 feet altitude near the head of Fawn Creek in the Gallatin Range in the northwestern part of the Yellowstone National Park," writes Vernon Bailey, Chief Field Naturalist of the U. S. Biological Survey in a book soon to be issued by the National Book Service, "I could make out with a field glass elk herds on the high ridges south, west, and north of camp. My climbing cautiously, so as not to disturb the elk, up to 10,000 feet on Quadrant Mountain south of camp I was soon in the midst of one of their choice summer ranges.

"Small herds and scattered individuals were seen over the big, open slopes above timber-line; bunches of old bulls with full-grown velvet horns lying on top of the ridges where the wind was strongest and insects least troublesome; calves and yearlings playing over a great snow bank on the old slopes; and cows peacefully lying in meadows of rich, short grass and clover. Little streams and pools of ice-cold water were everywhere and the elk were a picture of contentment and satisfaction with their ideal summer home.

"After watching them for about an hour a large grizzly bear that had been digging mice on a neighboring slope was seen walking across toward the elk. As he came in view their heads went up and the herds near him gathered into one dense mass of about 500 old and young, while the bear walked past close in front of them and on over the ridge, scarcely turning his head to notice them. The herd was a beautiful sight, 25 or 30 old bulls with sets of large horns towering above the numerous small elk, while the front ranks were mainly filled with anxious cows ready to give battle for the protection of their young. When the bear had disappeared they quietly dispersed to their grazing and seemed very little concerned."

VIEW IN BETHUNE, THE OBJECTIVE OF GERMAN DRIVE

The important city of Bethune has been one of the objectives of the Germans in their drive to Flanders and the British have held stubbornly to the towns that guarded it. This photograph shows the square of Bethune, the buildings being damaged by gunfire.

PRINCESS MONDAY

Heredity may be responsible for the acting ability displayed by Earle Williams, who is featured in the part of John Strangeway in "The Balance." His mother's brother, James Paget, was a famous actor a generation ago. However, his entry into the screened drama was merely the result of a desire to kill time that hung heavily on his hands during the summer. He applied for work with the Vitagraph Company as an extra, but his natural qualifications soon carried him to the top. In this photograph, an adaptation from the novel, "The Hillman," by E. Phillips Oppenheim. Mr. Williams plays the part of a puritanical hillman who wins the heart of an actress through the strength and integrity of his character. He is supported by Grace Darmond, Miriam Miles, Denton Vane, Julia Swayns Gordon, Robert Gaillard and Templar Saxe.

Jeff J. Garrett has returned from the Oklahoma oil fields and reports that money is so plentiful out there that the bell boys in the hotels turned up their noses when tipped with any coin less than a dollar.

GODD SHOWING.

One hundred and seventy United States warships, manned by 40,000 sailors, now are in foreign waters. Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt last night declared in a speech at the Y. M. C. A. in Brooklyn. He said hardly a day passes that a ship is not added to the American fleet. He said the navy would be increased to nearly 500,000 men before the end of the year.

SENATOR JAMES IS BETTER.

Washington, May 4.—The condition of Senator James, who is ill at Johns Hopkins Hospital, was reported yesterday to be improved. Secretary to the President Tumulty, Rear Admiral Grayson, Ray Baker, director of the mint, and Representative J. Thomas Heflin were among those that motored to Baltimore yesterday to call on the Senator.

GERMAN LIE NAILED.

The United States formally denied Friday that American aviators are crossing to Europe on hospital ships. The reason the State Department took notice of Herlin's charges is the belief that the Huns will use this charge as an excuse for attacking Red Cross ships.

HUGH NELSON TO VOLUNTEER

Hugh Nelson has announced his intention of volunteering and will leave for Washington this week to tender his services to the Government as an engineer. Hugh says the finger of Uncle Sam seems to be pointing at him. One of his ancestors signed the Declaration of Independence, another was at one time second in command by Gen. Washington in the Revolution; one of his English kinsmen was Great Britain's immortal sea-fighter Lord Nelson; his later ancestors fought in the war of 1812 and again in the Mexican war of 1848. His father fought in the civil war and his brother was a soldier in the Spanish-American war and in the last little brush with Villa on the border. Just at this time the Nelson family has no representative at the front and as his brothers are both married and he has no matrimonial prospects and 34 years is a good fighting age, draft or no draft, he says it is up to him. He believes he can help more now fighting the Huns than he can building ships and is ready to go.

HOW PIONEERS MADE CHANGE

Silver Dollars Were Quartered and "Sharp Shins" Were Result—Pelts Once Currency.

We of today, with half-dollars, quarter-dollars, dimes, nickels and pennies, often find it difficult to "make change." Still more difficult was it for the early settlers to do so, Martha G. Purcell writes in "Stories of Old Kentucky." As the Indians used wampum, so the pioneers of Kentucky used the skins of wild animals as their first currency. While hunters continued to come to this region, Spanish silver dollars came gradually into circulation. Still there was no small change.

As "necessity is the mother of invention," our forefathers actually made change by cutting the dollar into four equal parts, each worth 25 cents. These were again divided, each part worth 12½ cents, called bits. People sometimes became careless in the work of making change, and often cut the dollar into five "quarters" or into ten "eighties." On account of the wedge shape of these pieces of cut money, they were called "sharp shins."

If change was needed for a smaller sum than 12½ cents, merchants gave pins, needles, writing paper and such things.

This cut silver gradually found its way back to the mint for recoinage, usually to the loss of the last owner. As late as 1800, a business house in Philadelphia received 100 pounds of cut silver, brought on by a Kentucky merchant, which was sent on a dray to the United States mint for recoinage.

The Christening.

"And what is the name of this child?" asked the minister ready for the ceremony.

"Well, you see, parson," said the plain-speaking father, "we haven't just decided yet. Wife wants him named after her uncle and I want him named after mine. Just flip up a cent, parson, and see which it is to be—heads I win."

CLYDE PUTTY HELD OVER

EXAMINING TRIAL HELD YESTERDAY MORNING IN COUNTY COURT BEFORE JUDGE CHAMPLIN.

The examining trial of Clyde Putty was at 10 o'clock in Judge Champlin's court. County Attorney Fruit, assisted by John Feland, represented the commonwealth and Otho Anderson represented the defendant Putty.

The defendant is charged with the offense of maiming one Sam Henderson by biting a part of his ear off during a fight between these two parties which occurred April 13 in Claud King's saloon on Sixth street. Both parties testified that they were intoxicated at the time the fight occurred.

The defendant pleaded not guilty of the specific charge of maiming and, though several witnesses were introduced to support his plea, he was held over to the grand jury under a bond of $200.

Mr. Putty is 25 years of age and within the draft law. Should he be called into service soon by the U. S. Government, he will be exonerated of the charge against him.

SHORT CROP IS PREDICTED

PLANTING OF TOBACCO HAS BEGUN—GENERAL SCARCITY OF PLANTS PREVAILS.

Reports coming from the county yesterday said that the planting of tobacco for this year's crop had begun and that from this time on for a period of six weeks this will be one of the principal businesses of the farmers of this section of the state.

Several farmers living in different sections of the county were interviewed yesterday and all report a scarcity of plants in their respective localities. Many have no plants at all while a majority of those who have succeeded in getting a crop of plants say they are rather late getting large enough to transplant, and many are pushing the growth by the use of heavy applications of nitrate of soda. If plenty of good seasons should obtain this spring a full crop will likely be set. But a scarcity of plants and a dry season combined will operate to cut down the acreage below an average. Farmers need not be surprised if the acreage is largely reduced this season.

WOMEN'S WORK BIG SUCCESS

MISS MARY CLARK REPORTS LARGE AMOUNT OF BONDS SOLD BY COMMITTEE.

We had almost ceased to sing in this county the old song, "Let the Women Do the Work," until the United States entered the war and we began to boost the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., the Navy League, Surgical Dressing, Helginn Relief, the selling of Liberty Bonds, and only Garfield, Hoover, and President Wilson know what else. Now, we do not sing has been thoroughly demonstrated women just "do the work." This has been thoroughly demonstrated recently in many ways.

Yesterday Miss Mary Clark, Chairman of the Woman's Committee of the Third Liberty Loan of Christian county, reported to Mrs. Donald McDonald, State Chairman, at Louisville, and to Mrs. Florence Wade, Chairman of the Woman's Committee of the Eighth Federal reserve district, at St. Louis, that the women of this county have sold $183,500 of bonds during the Third Liberty Loan campaign. This amount does not include any bonds sold by the women during the big drive in Hopkinsville when the ladies and men went together and worked together. This is fine work and Miss Clark and her committee are to be congratulated for the splendid result of their work. Yesterday the final day of the campaign, they sold $700 or more of liberty bonds.

Not only have the ladies done fine work in selling bonds, but they have done, and are doing, splendid service for the Red Cross, Navy League, Helginn Relief, Surgical Dressings, etc. Day after day and night after night they are to be found active, interested and enthusiastic in the many different kinds of work being done in helping to win the war for freedom and humanity.

The Long Arm of Mercy

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The Red Cross is the Long Arm of Mercy.
It is the Kindness of Mankind—organized.

In Man is an Angel and a Devil, a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. The Red Cross is the Good, aroused, energized to thwart the Bad.

It is the best antidote we know to the bane of war.

There are other Charities, more or less helpful. The Red Cross is the mightiest of all Charities, the Love and Pity of all men made supremely efficient.

If, as Emerson said, "sensible men and conscientious men all over the world are of one religion," this is the expression of that religion.

The Red Cross is Humanity united in Service.

It asks no man's opinion; only his need.

Black or White, Friend or Foe, to the Red Cross there is no difference; it only asks: "Who is Suffering?" And to him it goes.

The Red Cross is so Efficient that Governments recognize it; so Pure in its purpose that whoever wishes well his fellow men, desires to help it; so Clean in its administration that the most suspicious can find no fault in it.

The Red Cross not only seeks to alleviate the cruelties of War; it is the expression of those human sentiments that some day will put an end to War.

It is the impulse of Love, striving to overcome the impulse of Hate.

It is Mercy's co-operation struggling against War's rivalries.

It is the one Society in which every Man, Woman and Child should be enrolled; for it knows no sects, no prejudices, no protesting opinion; the human being does not live that does not feel that the starving should be fed, the sick tended and the wounded healed.

Majestic and divine is this Long Arm of Mercy; it finds the fallen on the battlefield, it brings the nurse and the physician to the victim in the hospital; it leads the weeping orphan to a home; it feeds the starving, cares for the pest-smitten whom all others abandon, and pours the oil of Help and Pity into the bitter wounds of the World.

Where a volcano has wrought desolation in Japan, or a Flood in China, or a Hurricane in Cuba, or a Famine in India, or a Plague in Italy, or ravaging Armies in Poland, Serbia or Belgium, there flies the Red Cross, the Angel of God whom the fury of men cannot banish from the Earth; and to the Ends of the Earth, over all the ways of the Seven Seas, wherever is Human Misery, there is extended, to bless and to heal, its Long Arm of Mercy.

THE SCARLET CROSS

By
Margaret Widdemer
Of the Vigilantes.

What is it that you do today, who lift the Scarlet Cross?
For all the withered world is down in ruin and in loss.

And all the world hears rushing sword, and hears no sound less plain—
What can you do who lift the Cross, but heal to fight again?

We guard the women left alone, heartbroken for their dead,
We save the children wandering where all save Fear has fled.

We raise again the broken towns swept down by shot and shell,
We heal again the broken souls hopeless from learning Hell—

Oh, they who saw but Grief and Hate see now our red sign plain—
We save the sad world's soul alive that War had nearly slain!

Drawings Cannot Drive This Woman Back

She Thinks Coffee for Soldiers
More Important Than Safety.

The following extracts are taken from a letter written by a Red Cross Canteen worker, Helen McElhone, an American woman and college graduate now located in a district almost constantly under bombardment:

"Foyer des Allies,
"Harle-le-Buc.

"Things look very black to me. I am discouraged at the big outlook of affairs and also at my small doings, but it may be the blackness that comes before dawn. Let us hope so. Our men certainly need help now as much as the police. I am beginning to see those who have been at the front. In fact, I am beginning to see some of the results of this life. They are sick and homesick, and worse things have happened to them. Several have said: 'All we ask is to get to the front and do what we have to do. Anything is better than this life. . . . This morning we had more Americans than I have seen before at one time. One came up to me here as I was drawing coffee from a big marmite as fast as I could fill cups and, pointing to his pipe, said, 'Tobac, tobac.' I said, 'Do you want some tobacco?' He seemed stunned for a moment and then said: 'Do you know it nearly gave me a fit to hear you speak English in five months.' He said he had been working about in the cold since four o'clock last night. He couldn't find a hotel or a bright light because, of course, everything is closed and darkened on account of the bombardments. . . . The Americans are very fond of ham sandwiches. They eat much more than the French soldiers, and when they first came in and ordered six eggs apiece it caused consternation throughout the land. The funniest thing of all is to hear the Samurais grandly urging these wealthy English girls to 'keep the changes on, keep the changes on. . . . We start the day at five and work continuously until nine, when three fresh cantinieres relieve us. At five we go on for the evening shift from five to eight, and it is the most exciting and exhausting of the shifts. There is a certain time when they come down on us like a flood, eight or ten deep around the counter and three or four hundred altogether in this little room, as eager and tired as schoolboys."

The foregoing letter indicates that our soldiers look to the Red Cross Canteen as an oasis in a desert. They would not have it if it were not for your Red Cross.

The Call From No Man's Land

The Spending of Your Hundred Million Dollars

Busiest Budget in All the World Is a Red Cross War Fund—Every Dollar Spent Alleviates Misery.

By WILL PAYNE

Last summer the public subscribed a hundred million dollars to the Red Cross. At the latest statement over eighty-five millions of it had been appropriated.

Where has it gone? you ask. For many months the world has been spending over a hundred million dollars a day for the destruction of life, limb and means of subsistence. Till up what you have read about the war's devastation. The American Red Cross enormous job is to do whatever it can to alleviate that—not after the war, not after governments have deliberated and resolved; but right now, at the minute, on the spot. It's amazing that it has done so much with so little money.

Last autumn the Italian army fell back precipitately. On your war map that meant rubbing out one line and drawing another half an inch farther south. Over there in Italy it meant thousands of poor families fleeing from their homes. Major Murphy, Red Cross Commissioner in Europe, rushed to the scene and wired: "Indescribably pitiable conditions exist, involving separation of mothers and children, cold, hunger, disease, death." In November and December the American Red Cross appropriated three million dollars for relief there—a large sum, yet small in comparison with the need.

Condensed Milk for Children.

Soldiers are only a part of the Red Cross' work—probably the smaller part. Every instant, somewhere in the vast flood of destruction, a hand reaches up in appeal. It is pretty apt to be a child's hand or a woman's. When the Red Cross commission reached Petrograd it asked the government, "What is the most urgent thing?" The government replied: "We must get condensed milk for the little children here." The commission got the milk. At one spot in France farm work was stopped by lack of horses. That meant more hunger. The Red Cross got in a big tractor and set it to plowing for the community.

There are a million needs. Cold, wet and the deadly physical strain of the trenches undermine men's constitutions. A frightful scourge of tuberculosis has developed in France. The Red Cross has built sanatoria, provided over a thousand beds and nurses.

Thirty Millions for France.

I have here a big sheet of sheets filled with figures. One item is thirteen million and odd dollars—the amount which, up to that time, had gone to the local chapters of the Red Cross in the United States for local relief. Twenty-five per cent of the money subscribed through the chapters eventually goes that way.

Over thirty millions have been appropriated for work in France. Here is a million and a quarter—in round numbers—for military hospitals and dispensaries; over a million and a half for canteen service, where French and American soldiers, relieved from the trenches, can get good food, a cot, a bath, and have their clothes disinfected—and so go on for their brief holiday clean, rested, nourished. There are over three millions for hospital supply service; half a million for rest stations for American troops.

Aid of refugees—eleven thousand families—accounts for nearly three million dollars; care and prevention of tuberculosis takes over two millions; care of helpless children over a million; relief work in six devastated districts, including care of five thousand families and sufficient reconstruction to make houses habitable, required over two millions.

Misery on an Unparalleled Scale.

These are all large items; but the Red Cross is grappling with human misery on an unparalleled scale—a world of it. The item for relief of the blind amounts to four hundred thousand dollars. The dispensary service sends supplies to more than thirty-four hundred hospitals. The Red Cross receives and distributes more than two hundred tons of supplies daily at Paris. For this distribution and its other work it requires a big transportation service of motors and trucks. This transportation service has cost a million and a half, and its operating expenses ran to a million dollars.

Every dollar it spends means misery alleviated. Its work is building abroad for the United States the best good will in this world. It is building the best good will among ourselves. Whatever else the war may produce, we shall be proud of our Red Cross.

I want to say to you that no other organization since the world began has ever done such great constructive work with the efficiency, dispatch and understanding, often under adverse circumstances, that has been done by the American Red Cross in France.
—General Pershing.

Compare Your Baby's First Four Years With This

In 1913 little Marie was born in a village not far from Mezieres, in the Ardennes.

In 1914 Marie's father, called to the colors, fell at the Marne. And Marie and her mother stayed in the village, which was now in the Germans' hands.

In 1915 a poster was pasted up on the door of the village church, and that night Marie's mother vanished, along with a score or more of other women.

In 1916 Marie was still living in that village—existing through the charity of the few elderly folk the Germans permitted to stay.

In 1917 Marie, with all the orphans under fourteen years and all the old people left alive in the village, was bundled into a crowded car and shipped into Germany, round through Switzerland and thence into France, arriving at Evian. She was underfed, of course, emaciated, sickly, dirty, too tightly dressed for the time of year. And she came into Evian with not a relative, not a friend left in all France to take care of her.

Who took her? Your Red Cross! Over there in Evian your Red Cross took charge of her, cared for her in the Red Cross Children's Hospital, clothed her, fed her, built up her strength, taught her to play—and then helped the French authorities find her a HOME.

Multiply Marie by 500 and you will have some idea of just one day's work your Red Cross does at Evian. It is only one of the Red Cross activities in France, to be sure—but for just that one alone can you help being proud of it? Can you help being glad you are a member of it, supporting its great work of humanity? Can you help wanting it to go on helping the Maries and the "grand-daddies" that come in at Evian?

THE TRAIN THAT SAVED A NATION

How the Red Cross Helped Roumania.

Have you heard of what happened in Roumania when that stricken nation stood in rags and starving before the shocked eyes of the world? We had thought ourselves grown used to tragedies until this greater horror struck a blow that 'roused still untouched sympathies.

And yet we felt so helpless, you and I, so terribly weak in our ability to offer aid. But were we? After all, were we not the very ones who carried new life and hope to the heart of Roumania? You shall be your own judge.

Fighting with the desperation of despair, the shattered Roumanian army still struggled to beat off the Kaiser's bloody Huns, who were mercilessly trampling the life out of the little kingdom. And the Kaiser smiled brutally as he saw his wolves at work and knew that from behind the lines, attacking the fighting men of Roumania from the rear, entering the homes where mothers clung to the frail, distorted forms of their babies—was starvation.

No country around Roumania could help her—and America was too far away. Thousands would die before supplies held in our own country could be sent her.

Hope was gone. Death by hunger and by the dripping sword of the Kaiser was closing in. A brave little nation was being torn to pieces.

Then came the miracle. One morning the streets of Jassy, the war capital of Roumania, swelled with sounds of rejoicing. A city where the day before there was heard nothing but the wails of the starving and the lamentations of those mourning their dead now was awakened by shouts of joy.

Yon, my friend; you who have helped in the heroic work of the American Red Cross, had gone to the rescue of Roumania. A train of 31 big freight cars packed to their utmost capacity with food, clothing and medicine, tons upon tons of it, had arrived in Jassy after making a record breaking trip from the great store houses of the American Red Cross in Russia. Other trains followed it; thousands were fed and clothed and nursed back to health. For weeks and even to this day the brave people of Roumania are being cared for in countless numbers by our own Red Cross.

So was Roumania helped, and when history records how this last fragment of a sturdy nation was kept out of the hands of the terrible Huns it will give the victory to your American Red Cross.

TENNESSEE FARMERS AND BUSINESS MEN MEET TO DISCUSS SHEEP RAISING PLANS

(By International News Service.)
Nashville, Tenn., May 3.—A State convention of farmers and business men is being held here to work out a plan for increasing the sheep industry in Tennessee.

It is recognized that millions of head of sheep could be raised in the mountains of East Tennessee, where the land is worth little for agriculture purposes. The greatest difficulty to be overcome is that of getting the industry started.

It was brought out at the meeting today that while there are farmers and cattlemen who raise a few head of sheep, the number is insignificant compared with what it might be. Bankers and business men, it is indicated, will assist those farmers who desire to enter the industry.

Favorable legislation to the sheep herder will be enacted at the next session of the Legislature, according to promises put forward by leading politicians. The chief measure will be a bill providing for the extermination of stray dogs and the licensing of dogs that will not destroy the herd, or at least, not destroy the lambs.

Hundreds of thousands of acres of mountain lands in the Appalachian Range, extending through Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, Virginia, North and South Carolina and Kentucky could be made available to the sheep raiser at a small expense.

In fact, conditions are such that in most parts of the country the only thing necessary to start the industry is the introduction of the breeding stock. Winters are so mild that housing and feeding would not be necessary.

Knew What He Was About.

Boston has frequently been made the butt of the joker who declares that our cops go about with their noses buried in a volume of Epitaphs or some other ancient. We've never noticed any doing this. We confess, however, to hearing of a policeman who was having his body christened and gave the name "Septimus Octavius" to the officiating clergyman.

"But—er—" began the minister. "That's all right, sir," said the cultivated cop. "He's the seventh son, but the eighth child."—Boston Evening Transcript.

Glass Blowing an Ancient Art.

The art of glass blowing is also very ancient and had an existence probably 4,000 years before Christ. The art of blowing is plainly depicted upon the tumuli of Mastaba of Tili at Memphis, and these tombs were built more than 5,000 years ago. In the picture upon them the blower with tube in mouth, just the same as the present day, is seen squatting before his furnace, and from the detail and perfection of knowledge of the art evidenced in the ancient pictures it is readily seen that glass blowing was no new thing with the people of that time and region. The glass blower of that day made vases, beads, ornaments and bottles.

Wine of Life

By CATHERINE HOPSON

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Want a lift?" called out a cheery voice, as jingling sleigh bells slowed up.

Amy Davaant, teacher of the Pine Grove school, stepped aside in the road at the approach of bells, and then turned with a slight pucker between her smooth brows at the familiarity of the question. Her need of a "lift" was obvious since she was bounding through fourteen inches of unbroken snow. Besides, she felt piqued that Duncan Alden, unlike the other young people in the community, had made an effort to get acquainted since he came among them.

"Oh—It's you, Miss Davaant," Alden said when he saw who it was. Then he jumped out to help her in the sleigh.

"I don't wonder you didn't recognize me, I'm so wrapped up," she laughed as he tucked the robe around her.

"Why in the name of common sense didn't the Perkins take you to school on a day like this?" he asked, when the jingle of bells began again.

She laughed. "They seldom think it's necessary. Their daughter, Amelia, once taught this school when she was a girl, and walked back and forth every day of the term. She set an uncomfortable precedent."

"It's hard to live up to some one else's reputation, especially in a winter like this."

"Maybe the paragon Amelia didn't have so much snow to wade through. But in most ways the Perkins are very kind to me," she amended, lest she should seem to disparage the good people with whom she boarded.

"Yes! But it must be pretty dull for you there—just those two old people." He glanced commiseratingly at the bright-eyed girl beside him.

"It isn't exactly exciting," she acknowledged.

When they reached the district schoolhouse, the unbroken snow and smokeless chimney told them that they were the first arrivals.

"Oh, I'm afraid Ted isn't there," she exclaimed in dismay. "He's the boy I hired to build fires for me."

"Allow me to be Ted this morning," laughed he. "I'm a good hand at fire building. A case of practice making perfect, you know."

She protested, but he had his way, and soon had a glowing fire in the rusty stove. This done, his glance traversed the typical country school-room back to the dusty, city-bred girl before him.

Genuine concern was in his face.

This blizzard made travel mighty hard. I doubt if any of the pupils get here this morning. Most of them live so far away. What'll you do if they don't come?"

"Oh, stay out the time. I'll have to on account of the salary you know. The directors aren't very lenient in the matter of lost time."

"That's so. But it's a pretty dreary proposition. I'll drop in at noon to see how you're making out." With a few last laughing words of advice, he left; and the merry sound of bells died away in the distance.

He was right about the pupils. No one came. Amy put in the morning correcting papers and finishing pieces of work she had been obliged to neglect in the stress of regular routine. All the time, though she would not acknowledge it to herself, the thought of Alden's promise to drop in at noon was a cheering factor.

However, when twelve o'clock came he did not appear and she was setting out a cold lunch from her lunch box when she heard bells again. She opened the door. Alden stood there, fur-capped, his dark eyes shining.

"I'm afraid I'm a bit late, Miss Davaant." His keen glance took in the forlorn, empty schoolroom. "I see my prophecy proved true."

She laughingly assented.

"I'm glad of it," he said naively. "For it makes possible the wish I've been harboring that you would do me the honor of taking pot-luck dinner with me. I'm no much of a cook, but I can make bully soup; and so a whole kettle full on the stove in my cabin."

Her eyes brightened, but hesitancy shone in their depths.

"Oh, I know it may be a bit unconventional. But surely this blizzard might allow us some latitude in that direction. Besides, we have Lasse, here, for a chaperone," he nodded at the gentle-eyed vulture at his feet.

She laughed. "It does seem as if the storm might make some concessions. But can you get back by one o'clock? I might have some pupils by then, you know."

He gave hearty assurance, and before she could change her mind he huddled her into his wraps.

Again the jingling cutter made the half-mile trip to his cabin, where the appetizing odor of steaming tomato soup greeted them. The cabin was a cozy, two-roomed affair, bachelor in appointments, but with books and magazines everywhere. Amy drew a long breath. After five homelike months away from her kind in the narrow isolation of the Perkins home, it was good to be in a book-loving atmosphere again.

To do her honor, he spread a clean white cloth over the little, oil-cloth covered table, and served the steaming tomato soup. They were as merry as two children while they ate. Lasse sat beside them in gracious foreboding as they talked and laughed. But were surprised when the clock struck one. Quickly they entered the cutter and drove back to the schoolhouse where silence again greeted them.

"We weren't here hurried so after all," protested he.

"Some of the pupils may come yet," answered she.

He brought in more wood for her and with advice about keeping up the fire well, went away.

The afternoon dragged. No one came. She finished the odd jobs which occupied her during the morning, and time hung heavily on her hands. The storm which had shined at noon, increased in fury. The air seemed full of snow and smooth unbroken expanses of white stretched out around her for miles and miles.

She had no assurance that Mr. Perkins would come for her at four o'clock—he never did. And Alden had not said anything about coming back. Her spirits which a little while ago were gay and carefree, slumped to zero point.

"How shall I get home? How can I ever go alone through this storm?" She did not wish to desert her post before four o'clock, and during the last hour stood at the window watching each way of the road for a passing team that might help her out of her difficulty. But none came by. Above the noise of the storm, she could sometimes catch howls of coyotes. Tears gathered in her eyes at the desolation of it all.

"I can't stay here all night," her quivering lips whispered. "Oh, why didn't I ask Mr. Alden to take me back to the Perkinses at noon, even if I lost my position by so doing? Surely they would have forgiven me for missing half a day—when none of the children came."

She was nervously putting on her wraps, when a knock sounded at the door. She had heard no sound of approaching sleigh-bells, and for a moment stood in terror. What if it were some tramp seeking shelter? Then, summoning her courage, she went to the door and found Duncan Alden standing there.

"Oh, I'm so glad—I'm so glad to see someone," she cried, her face pale, and her brown eyes under the tumbled curls pitifully glad.

"Why—you poor little girl." His laugh was shaky. "This must have been a horrible day for you. I'm afraid we folks who're used to it haven't realized what a prairie blizzard must mean to you."

"Oh, I usually get along well enough—but today—"

"This is the limit. I telephoned to Mr. Perkins to see if he was coming for you, but he said he wouldn't think of taking his horses out in this blizzard. Some people are more considerate of their horses than anything else, you know. And I'm afraid you'll put me in the same class when I tell you that I couldn't drive my horse tonight. He cast a shoe going home this noon, and for some reason is terribly lame. I've been working over him—that's why I'm late. I kept hoping he could make it; but he simply can't go. However, I'm here with a snow shovel."

"But can you walk over to the Perkinses?" she faltered.

"No, but I phoned to Mrs. Tolan; they're the people who live in the cabin just beyond me, you know, and she wants you to stay there tonight. It's three-quarters of a mile from here, but with a snow shovel and a strong right arm, I think we can make it."

So they started forth. The snow had drifted over the path made by the sleighs earlier in the day; and the shovel was necessarily brought into service the greater part of the way. The late afternoon wind increased in fury, and Amy was obliged to hold her muff against her face to keep it from freezing. Nevertheless, despite their exertions, they found time for merry talk.

At last they saw shining out before them the welcoming light of the Tolans' cabin. Before ascending the little hill on which it stood, they paused to catch their breath.

"I'm mighty glad the storm came today and gave me a chance to know you," declared the man. "I've thought you were a city product who wouldn't care for pioneer life and people—that's why I've avoided you. But you've certainly shown yourself mighty plucky today." Something in his keen eyes made her own drop shyly as he added: "Five months of your stay's been wasted for me, but—I'm going to try and make up for lost time."

The wind howled, and around them stretched the desolate, snow-covered prairie; but it might have been a rose-garden for all the two young people heeded, for their eyes were bright with youth and joy and wine of life.

How Glass Industry Shifted.

The ancient Roman glass works shipped to all parts of the civilized world; and specimens of their productions are today found throughout Europe, and even in Ireland. When Rome commenced to decline and her great people fled to Byzantium, they took with them their glass industries and Constantinople became the greatest glass manufacturing city in the world. This prestige it held up to the tenth or eleventh century, and when it entered upon its decline and fall the glassblowers fled to Venice and there established what afterward grew into the celebrated Venetian glassware.

Potatoes for Ducks.
Ducks, as well as humans, must eat substitutes.
Small potatoes, too small, in fact, for the farmer to have paid any attention to ordinarily, are said to have solved the problem when mixed with carrots and other materials, minus which.

"No wheat is to be used for duck feeding," said W. B. Ayer, Oregon food administrator. "Substitutes must be found, and I am told that patriotic owners of duck lakes have discovered a remedy and have applied it. They are paying high prices for small potatoes, which in former days would not have been dug at all. These they are mixing with other materials and the ducks are thriving on them."

STARTS SWIMMING 18 MILES—IS IN HOSPITAL

(By International News Service.)
Seattle, Wash., May 4.—When Jack Watts, twenty-four, a sailor on one of Uncle Sam's torpedo boats, dove off a pier here and started to swim to the training ship Philadelphia, eighteen miles away, he started something he couldn't finish. When fished out of the bay he expressed his pleasure at having been saved the long journey.

Jack took into his system considerable quantities of salt water along with other liquids he had been imbibing and they didn't mix well. He was taken to the city hospital for bailing purposes.

FORTUNE WAS WITH AVIATOR

Otherwise His First Attempt to "Loop the Loop" in Air Would Have Been His Last.

It took many days of nerving myself up to the point and many steep dives before I decided to "flip her over," Philip Dwight Hader writes in Sun-Set.
The sun was high above me and I had attained an altitude of about 5,000 feet when I felt I was ready to take the plunge. To this day I am grateful to the maker of the machine because he constructed it so good and strong. If the plane had had a flaw, the manner in which I took that first loop would have landed me in the cemetery.

When the impulse came over me, I felt around to see if my belt was secure. It was. Bracing myself for the ordeal, I gave her full power and shoved her nose straight down. Straight for the earth I went, the combined force of gravitation and of the wide engine giving the plane a fearful speed, the stays shrieking in the wind and the control columns vibrating in my hand with the enormous pressure.

Steadily, firmly, I pulled the controls back. As if by magic the earth vanished from sight and my feet pointed toward the sun. It lasted only for a moment. While my ears were still deafened by the rush of blood to the head, the earth hove into sight again at a queer angle and my head seemed to be pushed back between my shoulders. In another second the earth resumed its accustomed position. I had looped the loop!

But oh! what a loop! Later experience taught me to throttle a little on the dive and to dive much less, or with just enough speed to put the plane on its back and then let it fall out of the loop. In that first loop of mine I must have had a speed of 150 miles an hour and how the plane stuck together with that terrific pressure has always been a mystery to me!

AWARDED MEDAL OF MERIT

Philadelphian Honored for Invention of Best-Known Device for Counting Blood Corpuscles.

The Franklin Institute has recently awarded its Edward Longstreth medal of merit to Mr. Max Levy of Philadelphia, Pa., for his new form of haemocytometer. The purpose of this device is to provide an improvement in chambers for counting blood corpuscles. The specific improvement is in forming the entire chamber, with the exception of the cover glass, from a single plate of glass. Cross lines, one-twentieth of a millimeter apart, are ruled upon the glass base, thus dividing the surface into squares one-four hundredth of a square millimeter in area. The surface upon which these rulings are made is one-tenth of a millimeter below the under surface of the cover glass through which the blood corpuscles are counted with the aid of a microscope. The channels in this haemocytometer run across the slide, making it much easier to clean than the disk form. A modification has the rulings made on a separate plate, cemented into a transverse groove cut in the base plate, into which it is accurately fitted. The instrument is a decided improvement over those heretofore obtained from Germany.—Scientific American.

Lively Wedding Festivities

Wedding festivities were turned to rioting in Natal, the other day. The daughter of a native chief had been married to another chief, Sabandi. After the wedding a dance took place about a hundred yards from the kral. Sabandi having made his speech of thanks, he inquired as to the appearance of an "army" under the bridegroom, which had not been present at the ceremony. The party began to move off, and some threw stones at the spectators. A melee ensued, some of the spectators taking refuge in the kral. Up to this time no assaults had been noticed. However, Nganyana, one of Masjani's men, was stabbed with an assegai behind the right shoulder, and killed. Other casualties were ataba and injured to the head and sustained by seven natives, all serious, but none fatal up to the present. As a result of the affray about 400 natives will probably be charged.

MET YESTERDAY MEET TOMORROW

ANTI-LOAFERS LEAGUE GETTING ORGANIZED AND READY FOR BUSINESS.

The Anti-Loafers League met yesterday at 3 o'clock p. m. at Liberty Loan Headquarters. There were many things of interest that kept the meeting from being largely attended but those present were mostly farmers and who were very much interested in the work of reporting and prosecuting every able-bodied male person between the ages of 16 and 60 who do not work at some gainful occupation, profession, business or job as much as 36 hours per week and as many as 20 days per month.

It was decided to have a public meeting at the court house at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon when several short speeches will be made and business transacted. The law will be explained by Mr. Soyars, the secretary, and others who have made a study of same. It is already known that the penalties for violations of the new vagrancy law are most severe and contains a provision for the removal of officers not doing their duty in the enforcement of same.

The League will soon have plans worked out whereby many persons in the city and county may suffer a punishment and much embarrassment unless they see fit to spend their hours and days in a different manner than is being done at present. It has been stated that the operation of this law will apply to some members of many of the best families of Hopkinsville and Christian county.

Farmers and business and professional men should remember the meeting Monday and be there on time.

EASTLAND-BRONAUGH.

Mrs. Helen Pendleton Bronaugh, of Pembroke, was married on April 27th to Mr. Thomas D. Eastland, of Danville, Ky. The wedding took place at McComb, Ill. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Y. Pendleton and was the widow of the late Jack Bronaugh, whom she married a few days before he succumbed to a fatal illness. She is a young woman of most attractive personality and much popularity.

MASONIC NOTICE

All Masons, their families and members of the Eastern Star are requested to meet at the Lodge room, this evening at 7:00 p. m. and attend services at the Universalist church, by invitation of brother Chapman.

DEATH OF MRS. MRS. BENNETT'S WILL KEATTS FUNERAL TODAY

POPULAR POSTMISTRESS AT HERNDON AND LADY UNIVER-SALLY BELOVED.

Mrs. Will Keatts, formerly Miss Maude Dawson, died in a Nashville hospital Friday night, following an operation for gall stones last Monday. Her condition had apparently shown improvement but on Friday there was a turn for the worse and she passed away. Mrs. Keatts was a daughter of Mr. P. D. Dawson and for several years had been postmistress at Herndon. She was 32 years of age and besides her husband is survived by two little daughters. Her husband and father were with her and returned with the body yesterday. The funeral will be held this morning and the interment will be in the Keatts' burying ground near La Fayette.

She was a member of the Christian church.

Mrs. Keatts was universally beloved for her many estimable traits. Some years ago she won a popularity contest conducted by the Kentuckian, being adjudged the most popular young lady in her section of the county.

She will be greatly missed in her community, as she was a leader in all worthy and beneficent matters and belonged to that class of noble women whose places are hard to fill when they are called by death.

MODERN BRUNHILDA BUT A MALE SLEEPS WHILE BEDDING BURNS.

(By International News Service.)

Newton, N. J., May 4.—He slumbered deeply and loyally in his room at the Waldmere Hotel, after a little cigarette butt that he had dropped ignited the mattress. He continued to sleep, while little flames ran along its edge and the room filled with smoke.

The man in the next room began to choke and traced the fire to the door of the slumberer. He entered to find the mattress afire, with its occupant stretched calm and still like Brunhilda on her pyre—only Brunhilda did not snore.

The intruder picked up the pitcher and emptied its contents on the modern Rip Van Winkle, who stirred, muttered drowsily, and slept again. The fire was out, to all appearances, and the rescuer left, pursued by the snores of the rescued.

Five hours later the man in the next room appealed to the management.

"He's afire again," he complained, "and I can't wake him up."

It took two strong men to rouse him sufficiently for him to slide off the burning mattress.

BACON FRY.

A number of young ladies arose early yesterday morning and hiked to the bridge on the Clarksville pike about one mile south of town and enjoyed a bacon fry. Some of those who made up the party were: Misses Julia Marshall, Norma Riley, Maud Oaks, Emmett Baker, Greba Layton, Jane Dunagan, Grace Richards, Emma Manning, Annie Mae Wadlington, Wanda Bunch, Ruby Sexton, and Helen Thompson and Master Walter Thompson. There were others of the party whose names were not learned. The chaperones were Mrs. G. C. Koffman and Mrs. Julia Bond.

MILLION FOR MISSIONS.

The Kentucky Baptists raised $80,268 for foreign missions and something more than $46,000 for home missions a total of $126,268. The State's apportionments were $55,000 and $37,000. The Foreign Mission Board received from all sources $1,006,000.
